What Is the Magnets Activity Set Used For?

Young children use the set to discover what magnets do by playing with them: stacking the ring magnets on the magnetic post to see like poles push apart, pulling the snap-on cars along with a bar magnet without touching them, and steering pieces through the maze tray. The activity cards turn each discovery into a short, guided task.

Work in small groups so every child handles the magnets, and let pupils predict what will happen before each test. As a hands-on science kit for primary school classes, it pairs well with a simple “sticks or does not stick” sorting activity using classroom objects. Keep magnets away from phones and computers, and supervise young children because the set contains small pieces.
