What Is the Play Parachute Used For?

Children stand around the edge, each holding a handle, and move the canopy together on the teacher's call: lifting it high to form a dome, making fast or slow ripples, or letting a light ball roll and bounce across the surface without it falling off. Calling out a colour, number or name so that children swap places underneath the raised canopy turns the same parachute into a listening and reaction game.

Because every child must move in time with the group, parachute play builds cooperation, turn-taking, rhythm and upper-body strength without anyone being knocked out of the game. Use it on grass or a cleared hall floor, keep shoes and sharp objects off the fabric, and fold it only when dry so it goes back into the bag clean.

Manufacturer

Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited trades as ScienceLab and manufactures this play parachute in Ambala, Haryana, as part of its physical education range for schools, pre-schools and education programmes. PE teachers and purchase departments can add balls, skipping ropes and group-play items to the same enquiry and receive a single quotation. Company background is on our company profile.
