What Is the 12 Colour Pencil Set Used For?

Colour pencils are a basic part of art lessons, but they are just as useful across the timetable: children colour maps in geography, label the parts of a flower or the human heart in science, and highlight number patterns in maths. Twelve assorted shades give enough range for colour-coding diagrams and their keys.

The hexagonal wood casing stops pencils rolling off desks and gives a steady grip, and because they arrive sharpened, a class can start work straight away. Sharpen the soft leads gently, return pencils to the flat metal box after each lesson, and keep the tight closure shut so the set stays complete.
