What Are Plastic Dental Mirrors Used For?

A dental mirror gives indirect vision of surfaces that cannot be seen straight on, such as the tongue side of the lower front teeth, the back surfaces of molars and the palatal side of the upper teeth. It also reflects light onto the area being examined and gently holds the cheek or tongue aside to widen the working field.

Hold the mirror in a pen grasp and keep it steady against a finger rest. Warming or wiping the mirror face reduces fogging from breath. Because this listing does not say whether the mirrors are single-use or reusable, confirm that with us and follow your facility's own cleaning and sterilisation procedure. Dental colleges and clinics that buy from a supplier of scientific & laboratory instruments often order mirrors together with scalers so each chair or student has a basic set.

Supplier

ScienceLab is the trading name of Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited, Ambala, Haryana. The company sources and supplies these plastic dental mirrors to hospitals, dental clinics, training institutions, distributors and importers, and can place them on one quotation with other examination items.

Mirror size, handle style and packing are confirmed with each quotation – just ask. More about us is on our company profile.
