Description :

Hung from a hook or beam, this dial-faced spring scale weighs babies and young children from 0 to 25 kg. The dial, 15 to 20 cm across, reads in 100 g divisions and in kilograms only. A damping mechanism steadies the pointer when a toddler moves, and a reading takes less than 15 seconds.

Field weighing tasks with the 25 kg dial scale

Monthly growth-monitoring session. Hang the scale from a beam at the reader's eye level, fit weighing trousers to the lower hook and set the pointer to zero. Lower the child in, wait for the needle to settle and write the weight to the nearest 100 g on the growth card. Arm circumference follows with a child MUAC tape.

Field check with a known mass. At the start of a session, hang a slotted mass hanger from the lower hook and confirm the dial reading. A wrong result calls for the calibration screw, and the check goes into the team's log.

Training on reading the dial. Students take turns reading the same load from straight in front and then from an angle, and record both figures. The gap between them show ys read
