What Is the Excretory Apparatus Chart Used For?

Excretion covers every route by which the body gets rid of metabolic waste: mainly the kidneys and urinary tract, with the skin, lungs and liver also playing a part. A large wall chart keeps the whole system in view while the teacher explains each organ, so students can refer back to it during note-taking, practical work and revision.

At 70 cm x 100 cm the chart is large enough for a class to see, and the laminated surface can be wiped clean, which suits laboratories where charts hang near benches and sinks. Hang it at eye level where excretion is taught and pair it with a three-dimensional kidney model, so students connect the diagram to real structure. Schools assembling a biology chart set often order it with the matching respiratory and digestive charts.

OEM Manufacturer

Excretory Apparatus is produced by ScienceLab, the brand of Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited, which makes this chart as the OEM at its own licensed factory at Saha, Ambala, Haryana, India. Orders go straight from the maker to schools, colleges, education departments, dealers and importers. For vendor registration, the company's GSTIN is 06AAECJ8618A1ZT and its LEI is 3358004HRD1JIVXKYX49. Details are on the ScienceLab profile.

Replacement charts for busy classrooms and repeat orders across several schools are handled by the manufacturer — just ask us.
