What Is the Human Teeth Chart Used For?

The chart supports lessons on how incisors, canines, premolars and molars differ in shape and job, how milk teeth are replaced by permanent teeth, and what lies inside a tooth, from enamel and dentine to the pulp. Health teachers also use it to explain why brushing, flossing and cutting down on sugary snacks help prevent tooth decay and gum disease.

Hang it next to a jaw or tooth model so students can compare the flat chart with a three-dimensional specimen, then ask them to identify their own tooth types with a small hand mirror. It also makes a clear backdrop for dental-health awareness activities run by school clubs.

OEM Manufacturer

The Human Teeth chart is an OEM product sold under the ScienceLab brand. ScienceLab is the trading name of Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited (CIN U29309HR2020PTC087597), which makes the chart at its own licensed factory at 449, HSIIDC Industrial Area, Saha, Ambala, Haryana (Factory Licence AMB-ONLINE-CHD-J-414). Schools, colleges, dealers and importers therefore buy directly from the maker, and extra copies for new classrooms can be requested from the same source. More about the company is on the ScienceLab company profile.
