What Are Rainbow Premier Pentominoes Used For?

Each pentomino is made of five equal squares joined edge to edge, and the score lines on these pieces show the individual squares clearly. Students use them to explore area (every piece covers five units), differences in perimeter between pieces of equal area, and transformations as they rotate and reflect pieces to fit a rectangle or outline. Fitting several pieces into a fixed frame is a classic problem-solving challenge that rewards planning and persistence.

Because the 72 pieces form six colour-coded sets, six groups can work at the same time, each with a full set of 12 shapes, and stray pieces are easy to return to the right group. The activity guide gives teachers ready-made challenges, and the clear tub shows at a glance whether every piece is back in place.
