Description :

Glycerine (Product Code: SCL387/0103) is an analytical reagent grade glycerol used mainly as a mounting liquid for temporary slides in school and college biology laboratories. Packed as 500 gm with its MSDS, a drop under the coverslip stops thin sections of stem, root or leaf drying out while students draw and label them, a routine item in any temporary slides biology kit. It is supplied by Jain Scientific Equipments Pvt Ltd (ScienceLab), Ambala, India.

What Is Glycerine Used For?

In anatomy practicals, students cut thin transverse sections, stain them in a watch glass with safranin or a similar stain, and transfer the best section to a clean slide with a fine brush. A drop of glycerine is placed on the section before the coverslip is lowered at an angle to avoid air bubbles. The glycerine keeps the tissue moist and slightly clearer, so the slide can be examined for the whole period instead of drying within minutes, which is why it pairs with every staining kit biology lab teachers in India use for the senior secondary syllabus.

Glycerine also has quieter uses around the prep room: a light smear helps glass tubing or thermometers slide into rubber corks and stoppers with less risk of breakage. Because it absorbs moisture from the air, keep the container capped between uses and dispense it into small dropper bottles for student benches.

Supplier

ScienceLab is the trading name of Jain Scientific Equipments Private Limited, an Ambala, Haryana company that supplies reagents such as glycerine, together with slides, coverslips and stains, to schools, colleges and distributors. Our company profile describes the business and its range.
