Description :

Human Skeletal System (Product Code: SCL495/0219) is a laminated wall chart used to teach the bones of the human skeleton and how the skull, spine, rib cage and limbs fit together, in school biology, anatomy and physical education lessons. The 75 x 100 cm polyart chart works as a permanent wall reference all term. It is made by Jain Scientific Equipments Pvt Ltd (ScienceLab), an OEM manufacturer, at its own factory in Ambala, India, and pairs well with a skeleton model.

What Is the Human Skeletal System Chart Used For?

Learning the bones is largely a naming and locating exercise, and a chart that stays on the wall all term gives students many small chances to practise. Teachers use it to separate the axial skeleton (skull, vertebral column and rib cage) from the appendicular skeleton (the limbs and the girdles that attach them), to compare the long bones of the arm and leg, and to show which bones protect which organs. It is also useful in physical education and health classes when discussing posture, fractures and why the spine is curved.

Many schools buying a human skeleton model in India add this chart as its companion, with the chart as the map and the model as the real object: students find a bone on the chart, then locate and handle it on the model. For quick quizzes, cover the labels with sticky notes and ask the class to name the bones, then remove the notes to check.
