Description :

Test Tube (Product Code: MSRC1062) is a 16 x 150 mm rimmed tube made of clear, heat-proof borosilicate glass 5.1, used for holding, mixing and gently heating small quantities of liquids and solids during practical work. Students carry out colour-change tests, small reactions and precipitation checks in it, while teachers and technicians use it for sample handling and quick trials. Schools, colleges and testing labs that buy borosilicate laboratory glassware in India can order it from Jain Scientific Equipments Pvt Ltd (ScienceLab), Ambala, India.

Typical Use

In school and college chemistry this tube is the everyday vessel for qualitative analysis: adding a few drops of reagent to a salt solution, watching for a precipitate or colour change, warming a mixture to speed up a reaction or testing a gas given off at the mouth. Biology classes use the same tube for food tests and enzyme activities. Its clear glass lets a whole class see the result, and the rim gives a firm lip for pouring and for a holder to grip.

As with all chemistry lab glassware for India’s schools, safe technique matters: fill only a small part of the tube when heating, hold it with a test tube holder at an angle, keep the mouth pointed away from people, and move it gently through the flame rather than holding it in one spot. After use, rinse promptly, scrub with a test tube brush and leave it upside down on a drying rack so no residue dries inside.
