What Is the Lightweight Reusable Lab Coat Used For?

SMS fabric places a fine meltblown layer between two stronger spunbond layers, which is why garments made from it are used where dust, powders or light liquid spray must be kept off clothing. This coat suits weighing rooms, powder-handling benches, electronics assembly and inspection areas, and general laboratory work where a heavy woven coat is not needed.

Its anti-static, low-linting surface helps keep loose fibres and static away from sensitive work, while the breathable fabric stays comfortable through a shift. Pharmacy colleges often add it to their pharmacy lab equipment list for tablet and powder practicals. Check the 107-112 cm chest and 112 cm length against your wearers before ordering.
